DUNBAR GRADE SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

The Parent-Teachers' Association met in its regular monthly meeting on Friday afternoon, April 16, over fifty persons were present.

The session opened by singing "Nearer My God to Thee." Prayer was offered by Prin. Hughes, followed by "Onward Christian Soldiers."

Principal Hughes gave a brief expression of thanks to the patrons for their splendid co-operation during the past year. He gave a report on funds received and disbursed at the Cafeteria and mentioned the great help Miss Blanche Woodford has been to him in its management. The next feature of the program was an illustrated talk by Mrs. Boothe on "Proper dress as an aid to the moral tone of the child."

The Dunbar Grade News was read and discussed by the patrons. Mrs. Georgia Brown put before the body some ways and means of getting the improvements mentioned in the article. Mrs. Collins, the secretary of the association, said that never in the history of Tulsa's Separate Schools has there been manifested such a cooperation between parent and teacher. She said that the teachers are doing a most satisfactory work in the community as well as in the schoolroom.

Mrs. Taylor our president asked the body to decide the nature of the next meeting which is to be the last one of the year. It was agreed that after a short business meeting the teachers be tendered a reception by the patrons.

It was agreed by the body that this meeting was the best had this year. After light refreshments, the meeting adjourned.

Mr. Campbell who is connected with the Tulsa Undertaking company was a visitor to the school last Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham took lunch with us at the Cafeteria last Tuesday noon.

Got Sense; Even Tho' They're White.

The Chamber of Commerce of Pine Bluff, Ark., recently inserted a full page advertisement in the local morning paper which bespoke for that body both originality and common sense. The advertisement declared it a self evident fact that "the rational contentment, prosperity and progress of the Negroes of our country are essential factors in the permanent prosperity of our community as a whole."—Indianapolis, Ind., Freeman.

HOWARD UNIVERSITY NOTES

E. H. Southern Visits University.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Apr. 20.—E. H. Southern, the great dramatist, who with his wife Julia Marlowe, has been playing to capacity audiences for two weeks, in Washington, paid an unusual compliment to the officers, teachers, and students of Howard University by reading to them from Shakespearean dramas and from other selections on Friday, April 19th, in Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel. Because of conditions in Washington, the Colored people have not been permitted to see or hear Southern and Marlowe at the local theatres, and Mr. Southern and Miss Marlowe paid the Colored people the compliment of reading to them at Howard University and at the Dunbar High School during their recent visit in Washington. Miss Marlowe read the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" at the Dunbar High School, but was prevented by the many demands upon her from appearing at Howard University. Mr. Southern was most generous in his rendition of selections. For more than an hour he read one selection after another, giving the students and teachers of the university full opportunity to appreciate his finished art. His introductory addresses at both places on the valor of the Colored troops he met in France, and on the pleasure and satisfaction it gave him to meet the Colored people of Washington during his stay here, were warmly applauded. Sel-dony has received so generous a welcome anywhere as given him by the representative Colored people of Washington who gathered at both Howard University and the Dunbar High School with officers, teachers, and students of those institutions to greet him and his distinguished wife.

President of Columbia University Speaks at Howard University.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Apr. 19.—President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University addressed the students of Howard University, recently in the Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel. Dr. Butler spoke with very great clearness and definiteness of the responsibility resting upon students privileged to attend an institution such as Howard University. He traced in chaste language the steps one must take to reach the station of "educated men and women," and then devoted himself to a discussion of the value and importance of the judgments which such men and women must make in their contact with the problems of life. Dr. Butler was warmly received by the whole student body when he arose to speak and was tremendously applauded at the conclusion of his eloquent remarks.

LARGER ACREAGE OF FLAX THIS YEAR IS DESIRABLE

Department of Agriculture Urges Western Farmers to Devise Plans.

Shortage of Linseed Oil Handicaps Building Operations—Indications Are That Price Will Remain High.

(Star News Service).

The flaxseed situation in the United States is more serious than ever before, according to an official statement from the United States Department of Agriculture. The crop is important on account of the principal products manufactured from flaxseed, which are linseed oil and linseed meal and cake. Linseed meal and cake are valuable stock feeds. Linseed oil is used chiefly in the manufacture of paints, varnishes, and linoleums. As no other oil can be substituted for it with satisfactory results, linseed oil is indispensable in all building operations.

Most of the world supply of flaxseed is produced in Argentina, Russia, India, United States and Canada, of which countries all but the United States produce an exportable surplus. The surplus is consumed chiefly by Great Britain, Continental Europe, and the United States. In the United States more than 95 per cent of the crop is produced in four States—North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota and Montana. Since 1909 the United States has depended on foreign countries, chiefly Canada and Argentina, for part of her flaxseed supply. This dependence on other countries has increased, as a result of the poor crops of the last few years, until now over two-thirds of our normal requirement must be supplied from abroad.

Strong Demand Will Continue. An unprecedented demand for flaxseed exists, due to various causes at home and abroad. The price has advanced steadily each year since 1913, until it is now four times the pre-war price.
